Private Markets and People-Centered Climate Action

About PCAP | People-Centered Climate Action

Objective:

A global initiative that promotes a people-centered approach to climate action in private capital markets—one that respects human rights and advances a just transition to a low-carbon, climate-resilient economy.

Resources

PCAP resources include responsible investment guidance, a portfolio level just transition tool, and sector-specific resources.

Collaboration

PCAP leverages engagement and collaboration with diverse organizations to promote people-centered climate action within private markets.

Events

PCAP will convene events commencing in 2026 to connect investors, companies, and civil society driving a just, inclusive, and sustainable transition.

Climate and Human Rights | Impact Pathways

Effective people-centered climate action involves looking holistically at the multiple ways in which investment portfolios and companies across sectors and operating-contexts may impact human rights in the climate context. Investors should consider and address the following impact pathways that give rise to climate-related impacts on people.

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Climate Impacts

- Business exacerbates climate change and related impacts on people

Examples:

- Physical impacts, e.g., droughts in local communities
- Direct health impacts from harmful methane emissions

BUSINESS AS USUAL

Vulnerability Impacts

- Business increases or reduces people's vulnerability to climate change

Examples:

- Poverty wages and incomes reduce climate resilience
- Pricing strategies exclude low-income consumers as climate shocks increase costs of living
- OHS programs do not consider health hazards of climate change on workers

MITIGATION ACTIONS

Transition Impacts

- Transition out: Actions related to the shift away from fossil fuels and other emissions-intensive activities.
- Transition in: All activities related to the shift towards a green economy, clean energy, and low-carbon industries.
- Neutralization: Other activities related to reducing GHG emissions, e.g., carbon credits

ADAPTATION ACTIONS

Physical Impacts

- Actions taken by business to adapt to the physical risks and impacts of climate change.

Examples:

- Seawalls or port infrastructure limit access to traditional fishing grounds communities depend on

People-Centered Climate Action | Steps

Communicate Performance

Disclose how climate-related human rights impacts are identified and addressed, particularly when concerns are raised by or on behalf of affected stakeholders and adopt a double materiality approach to reporting.

Track Performance

Monitor performance against climate and human rights targets using both quantitative and qualitative indicators.

Take People-Centered Climate Action

At both entity and investment levels, set science-aligned targets and allocate time and resources for people-centered mitigation and adaptation. Integrate human rights into climate investment strategies, climate into human rights plans, just transition into contract clauses, 100-day plans, stewardship, and exit.

1

Commit to People-Centered Climate Action

Adopt and publicly communicate a commitment to align with Paris Agreement and to advance a just transition that respects human rights and leaves no one behind.

6

Enable Access to Remedy

Ensure and use leverage to enable access to remedy for individuals and communities adversely affected by climate action.

2

Identify & Assess Impacts

Conduct enterprise-wide, portfolio-level, and portfolio company-specific assessments to identify and assess climate-related impacts on workers, communities, consumers, and other stakeholders arising from business-as-usual practices and climate solutions.
